

Job Opportunity: Full-time Research Assistant

We invite applications for a Full-time Research Assistant in Dr. Vladimir Sloutsky's Cognitive Development lab (cogdev.cog.ohio-state.edu), Department of Psychology and Center for Cognitive Science, The Ohio State University. The application process begins on October 5. The starting date is as early as December 1.

The successful candidate will assist with research investigating cognitive and developmental processes in elementary school and preschool children.

Current projects examine word learning, categorization, and the acquisition of early mathematical knowledge. Responsibilities will include data collection, data entry, subject recruitment, database management, communication with parents and teachers, and monitoring of IRB compliance.

Qualifications: a bachelor's degree in psychology, cognitive science, education, human development, or a related field. Experience working in an educational setting is desirable. Interest in research with young children and/or mathematical cognition is preferable. Interested candidates please email cover letter and CV, and arrange for three letters of reference to be sent via email to Dr. Jennifer Kaminski (kaminski.16@osu.edu). Include "Research Assistant Position" in the subject line.

This is a great opportunity for someone interested in getting research experience!
